An early morning fire in Thornhill destroyed this home located in the 4000 block of River Drive. Thornhill volunteer firemen responded to the call at approximately 4:15 a.m., but by the time they reached the scene, the building was engulfed in flame. No one was living in the building at the time of the accident and the owner is not in town at the moment. Officials suspect that the fire started in the porch area and quickly spread through the rest of the structure. Conducting a preliminary investigation into the cause of the blaze are firefighter Wes Patterson (foreground), assistant Deputy Chief Art Hovling (left) and Thornhill Fire Chief Jim Piper (right).

Traffic, sidewalks worry aldermen

by RALPH RESCHKE
Herald Staff Writer

TERRACE—Terrace council reviewed a number of items at Tuesday evening's council meeting, three of which might be given special attention are the Mohawk proposal, the RCMP building, and the disposition of the transit hut presently located between city hall and the new ambulance station.

It was decided that the bylaw regarding the rezoning of the Mohawk property would go to third reading and that the concerns raised at the public hearing of April 16 would be studied by the administration and the engineering committee.

In making his motion to go to third reading, Alderman David Gellately said that special attention should be given to the issue of sidewalks around the site, the location and construction of a propane storage tank and the landscaping.

He also stated that there should be some sort of development agreement reached between the municipality and Mohawk in regards to construction of the gas bar.

Alderman Alan Soutar made his position clear, saying that he would not vote in favour of the project if Mohawk did not include construction of sidewalks in their plans and also if they insist on building a propane storage tank on the gas bar site.

Traffic problems are what concern Alderman Ruth Hallock, who is not prepared to go ahead with approval for the project if something isn't included in the proposal to deal with the traffic congestion on that corner.

The matter will come up again at the next council meeting, with the engineering committee coming back with its development agreement proposals.

Dealing with another issue, council accepted the recommendation of the committee of the whole meeting of April 11, where it was decided that council approve the proposed building plan and proceed to obtain RCMP Police design approval and financial approval from the Treasury Board.

The plans call for the construction of a building of approximately 17,400 sq. ft. with a net area of 14,638 sq. ft. The building cost is estimated at $1.77 million and with the addition of $142,000 from professional fees, contingencies set at $124,000, disbursements at $18,000 and interim financing at $150,000, the gross estimated cost is $2,204,000.

Pending approval from the police and the treasury board, the proposal will go to public referendum in November of this year.

And for the sum of $1.00, the 747 Squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets (Terrace) purchased the old transit hut located between city hall and the new ambulance station.

After a brief presentation from Patrick Hall O'cdt on behalf of the air cadets, council was just as brief in deciding that the cadets could have their building.

Alderman David Gellately made the motion that administration take the necessary steps to meet the air cadets request.

His feelings are that the community benefits from having the air cadets remove the building from its present location.

The cadets would be responsible for taking the building apart, transporting it to the new site at the airport, and re-erecting it at that site, at their own expense.

It was also proposed that the airport manager be contacted to see if the property on which the building is to sit can be leased to the squadron for the sum of $1.00 per year.

Council also approved the appointment of Eleanor Michaud and Michael Zylcz as the Thornhill representatives to the District of Terrace Advisory Parks and Recreation Committee.

Both are members of the recently formed Thornhill Advisory Parks and Recreation Commission.

A resolution forwarded by the trustees of School District 88 calling for the development of two soccer pitches on city owned property located at Parkside was forwarded to the recreation committee.

Alderman Gellately, in making the recommendation, said that there are some items that should be investigated as far as agreements between the city and the school board are concerned.

Terrace council will also be showing support for Terrace Air's plans to extend their flight service with the addition of a twin engine plane to their current fleet of single motor aircrafts.

Terrace Air had requested that council write a letter to the Canadian Transport Commission as part of the companies application for a Group B license enabling them to expand their operation with the addition of the twin engine aircraft.

Council also received a letter from R.L. Rugg, in regards to his proposal to house the Terrace RCMP detachment in his renovated building.

At this point, Mayor Helmut Diesbrecht stepped down from the chair and let Alderman George Clark assume the duties of acting mayor while Giesbrecht explained the inadequacies of Rugg's proposal.

He said that the property in the Rugg proposal is too small to contain proper parking facilities for police vehicles and that it also wouldn't allow for landscaping.

However, Alderman Soutar countered that Rugg's proposal includes four extra lots behind the building to allow for parking.

The Mayor also pointed out that the Rugg balance sheet did not contain any funding for contingencies, whereas the municipal package does contain funding for that. Alderman Soutar, however, thinks that because Rugg's proposal is a firm one, contingency funding is not necessary.

Soutar also added that because of a "whim of council," Mr. Rugg had lost $14,000 in providing his information for his bid to the municipality.

The matter ended when acting Mayor George Clark stated that everyone had spoken at least once on the matter, and that because council had already spent so much time on this issue, unless new points could be presented the discussion would end.

A motion that the letter be received as information was passed and carried.

All council members were present at the two hour meeting.

Libyans ordered to open fire

LONDON (AP) — Envoys of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy today tried to work out details for evacuating the beleaguered Libyan People's Bureau and British police detectives questioned one of the Khadafy "revolutionaries" who had been running the mission.

Libya, meanwhile, indicated it would detain British diplomats in Tripoli until the staff of the bureau leaves Britain. British officials ordered the bureau vacated by Sunday midnight as part of a decision to cut diplomatic ties with Libya.

On Tuesday, British authorities expelled the personal representative of Khadafy from London, arrested another Khadafy aide and detained eight Libyan students at London's Heathrow Airport.

The siege began April 17 after a shooting incident involving a crowd of demonstrators who were outside the bureau protesting Khadafy's government.

A British policewoman was killed and 11 students were injured in the shooting which witnesses said came from inside the building housing the Libyan bureau.

Citing diplomatic privilege, the Libyans have refused to let British investigators inside the building to try to ascertain the origin of the firing. Police marksmen have surrounded the bureau since the shooting.

ENVOYS IN LONDON

Three envoys of Khadafy, sent at Britain's request, met early today with Foreign Office Undersecretary Sir John Leahy to prepare the groundwork for the bureau's evacuation, a Foreign Office spokesman said.

Leading the Libyan delegation to London was Col. Abdul Rahman Shaibi, a police intelligence expert and a minister for external security. The other two officials were identified as Nasir Ashur and Ahmed Said.

The envoys are expected to visit the bureau, in an 18th century building on elegant St. James's Square.

Detectives from Scotland Yard today questioned Matooq Mohammed Matooq, one of Khadafy's trusted revolutionaries. Matooq was arrested in western London on Tuesday.

He was part of a committee of four "revolutionary students" who seized control of the embassy Feb. 18, apparently on Khadafy's or-

Millions of dollars damage in earthquake

MORGAN HILL, Calif. (AP) — Police closed off damaged homes today in the wake of a strong earthquake that caused millions of dollars in damage in northern California, and authorities were surprised that a tremor strong enough to crack bridges and a dam caused only 21 minor injuries.

The quake struck at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday and measured 6.2 on the Richter scale of ground motion, the University of California Seismographic Station said. It was centred on the Calaveras Fault, about 19 kilometres east of San Jose and 80 kilometres south of San Francisco.

Although the tremor was felt for hundreds of kilometres, damage was centred in Morgan Hill, about 16 kilometres south of San Jose. Twenty-one people were reported injured, including two in hospital with concussions and 19 treated and released, authorities said.

Hardest hit was the Jackson Oaks subdivision of luxury homes in Morgan Hill, where 30 houses were damaged. Several were knocked off their foundations.

Eight homes were left uninhabitable, said Dick Maulden of the Morgan Hill Fire Department.

City Manager Charles Cate estimated damage at $5 million to $10 million in the Morgan Hill area.

"It's amazing there wasn't more damage or more injuries," said Jane Decker, spokesman for emergency services in Santa Clara County.

Almost one year ago, on May 2, 1983, a 6.7 earthquake hit Coalinga, 290 kilometres to the south, levelling the downtown, causing $31 million in damage and injuring 47 people.

Between 15 and 20 aftershocks in the 3.0 to 4.0 range were reported in the six hours following Tuesday's quake, said Bruce Bolt, director of the University of California Seismographic Station.

Bolt attributed the "minor" damage and injuries to the fact that the epicentre was located away from urban areas with older buildings.

A broken fuel line at the Blossom Hill Auto Repair Shop in San Jose caused a fire that caused $1 million in damage to the shop and two others, fire officials said.

The quake caused cracks along the top of the 427-metre long Anderson Dam near Morgan Hill, and the bridge over the dam was knocked from its foundation.

A bridge leading to Henry Coe State Park east of Morgan Hill was knocked from its foundation and suffered "serious damage," keeping some visitors from leaving the park, a spokesman said.

In San Francisco, high-rise windows shook and workers reported that buildings swayed for 20 to 30 seconds. Glass popped out of windows in the Western Merchandise Mart, but no injuries were reported.

Power was knocked out to thousands of customers of Santa Clara County Pacific Gas and Electric, and about 260 prisoners at the Santa Clara County Elwood jail in Milpitas were evacuated.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude; thus a reading of 6.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 5.5.

Nurse Traynor asked to take 'truth serum'

TORONTO (CP) — Nurse Phyllis Traynor is due to testify again today after startling the Grange royal commission Tuesday by suggesting someone might have tried to implicate her in 30 mysterious baby deaths.

In another unorthodox development, Douglas Hunt, a lawyer for the Ontario Attorney General's ministry, asked Traynor if she would agree to take sodium amytal, a drug regarded as a truth serum, to help her remember the circumstances of many of the deaths.

Even though a report by the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., says Traynor was on duty within hours of 29 of the deaths, Traynor has told the commission she can't recall details of most of them.

When Hunt made the suggestion, Traynor's lawyer, Claude Thomson, immediately objected to commissioner Mr. Justice Samuel Grange of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Grange said he would not allow Hunt's question, saying "it's too novel an approach to me."

"I don't think we have yet reached the stage where a witness says she can't remember, we offer her a drug and say 'Try it with this.'"

BEING FRAMED?

Hunt's suggestion came after Traynor said it had occurred to her that someone was trying to implicate her in the deaths, which occurred on the cardiac ward of the Hospital for Sick Children between June 1980 and March 1981. The Atlanta report said a number of the deaths were consistent with overdoses of the powerful heart drug digoxin.

In reply to commission lawyer Paul Lamek, Traynor said she could offer no explanation as to why all the suspicious deaths had occurred near the time she was on duty "unless somebody was using my schedule to make it look like I was the only one there when the deaths occurred."

Lamek asked if she was suggesting that someone may have been involved in causing the deaths and "setting you up or framing you ..."

"That has crossed my mind," Traynor replied.

But Traynor said she couldn't think of anyone who had sufficient animosity toward her to do so.

Nurse Susan Nelles told the commission earlier this month she believed someone may have been killing babies to discredit her nursing ability.

Nelles was charged with murdering four of the babies but was discharged after a preliminary hearing ruled in May 1982 that there was insufficient evidence to send the case to trial.

After Traynor's reply to Lamek, Hunt said that if somebody had killed all the babies while Traynor was on duty, she was the only nurse on her team who had an "opportunity to observe this person, whoever it was."

Traynor agreed with Hunt that such a person would have to be a member of medical staff because they were the only people who had authorized access to the infants.

But she would not agree that doctors could be ruled out as suspects because their unsolicited presence on the ward in the middle of the night — when most of the babies died — would have been suspicious.

Traynor said doctors often came to the ward to check the babies, even when they weren't summoned by the nurses.

"We didn't say: 'What are you doing here?'" she said.

But she could not recall whether any one doctor was on the ward in the hours before the 29 babies died.

It was at that point that Hunt suggested she consider taking sodium amytal, saying it was important she remember if anyone was near the babies and might have been trying to frame her.

Traynor, nursing team leader on cardiac ward 4A when most of the deaths occurred, told Hunt she had never purchased digoxin from a pharmacy outside the hospital.

Several of the baby deaths between June 1980 and March 1981 have been linked to overdoses of the powerful heart drug.

GOES TO PHARMACY

Traynor, who told police during their investigation of the deaths she believed digoxin was unavailable over the counter, said she later inquired at a Toronto drugstore to see whether it could be purchased without a prescription.

She said she believed the pharmacist told her it could only be purchased by prescription.

Hunt then asked Traynor if she was working "undercover" for the police when she went to the pharmacy.

"I had given police an answer and I wanted to make sure my answer was correct," she answered.

U.S. economy surging, study finds

WASHINGTON (CP) — About 40 Canadian business, labor and government officials paid $1,000 each to find out privately Tuesday what U.S. officials have been saying publicly — the economy is surging and there is hope of holding down interest rates.

The group got "an overall pleased impression" after day-long meetings with U.S. government officials about the American economy, said Darcy McKeough, chairman of an "executive briefing" organized by the Niagara Institute.

Based in Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., the institute describes itself as a non-profit body devoted to dialogue among senior leaders.

McKeough, president of Union Gas Ltd. in Chatham, Ont., and a former Ontario government treasurer, said in a brief interview that "the overall impression is that the American recovery is strong, the Canadian recovery is not quite as strong."

Further, he said, the Canadian executives were pleased to learn that there is "determination and a possibility for coming to grips" with U.S. federal budget deficits, seen as impediments to a strong international recovery and for holding the line on interest rates.

NOTED BEFORE

The U.S. and Canadian governments reported those growth trends last week. Canadian Finance Minister Marc Lalonde said two weeks ago he got the impression from Washington meetings with top officials then that interest rates wouldn't rise and perhaps would decline.

Lalonde conferred then with Paul Volcker, chairman of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board, and U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan. Volcker, who heads the U.S. counterpart of the Bank of Canada, was booked for an after-dinner speech to speak to the Canadian executives after a cocktail reception at the residence of Canadian Ambassador Allan Gotlieb.

The Canadians were briefed during the day by Rudolph Penner, director of the Congressional Budget Office; Martin Feldstein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors; Sidney Jones, undersecretary of Commerce, and Manuel Johnson, an assistant secretary in the U.S. Treasury.

The all-male list of listeners provided by Toronto publicist James Anthony was dominated by Toronto banks, finance and consulting corporations but included such company executives as J. Howard Macdonald, chairman of Dome Petroleum Ltd., Calgary; Pierre Poitras, treasurer of Bombardier Inc., Montreal, and Vinod Sood, president of Flinnig Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd., Vancouver.

Canadian governmental officials included Gordon Ritchie, associate deputy federal minister for regional industrial expansion; David Slater, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada; Mark Daniels, deputy federal labor minister; Michael Costello, Saskatchewan deputy finance minister, and Thomas Courchesne, chairman of the Ontario Economic Council.

Unions represented were the United Steelworkers of Canada, by national director Gerard Docquier; the British Columbia Federation of Labor, by president Art Kube, and the Ontario Public Service Employees' Union, by president Sean O'Flynn.

ders, because the diplomats were said to have not been taking a tough enough anti-Western line.

Anti-Khadafi Libyan exiles said the committee's main mission was to co-ordinate attacks on dissidents in Britain. Police have linked a bombing at Heathrow on Friday night to anti-Khadafi bombings in London on March 10.

EXPULSED LEADER

Authorities expelled the leader of the four-man committee, Ghadir Baghdadi, 34, Tuesday, charging his presence in Britain was "not conducive to the public good."

The third committee member was deported Monday, and the fourth returned to Tripoli a week before the siege began.

Eight Libyans, described as students, were detained at Heathrow Airport on Tuesday after they flew in from Tripoli, Libya's capital, and Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

The Daily Mirror newspaper quoted intelligence sources as saying there are two dozen Beretta submachine-guns with silencers and Spanish Starr handguns in a "huge arsenal" in the Libyan bureau in London.

Scotland Yard declined comment on the newspaper report. Libyans in the bureau have claimed they have no weapons.

Newspapers quoted Libyan Foreign Minister Ali Abdussalam Treiki as saying that Libya will "apply the principle of reciprocity in all its dealings with Britain."

Libya indicated it will not let families of British diplomats leave Tripoli on Thursday as scheduled.

In Washington on Tuesday, Reagan administration sources said that several hours before the shooting at the bureau, Libya messaged the bureau's staff orders to shoot at protesters. The sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Washington Post reported today that the coded radio message from Libya ordered the staff to create disturbances, including bombings of public places.

TORONTO (CP) — Companies that refuse to pay women employees equal pay for work of equal value shouldn't be allowed to have government contracts, Liberal leadership candidate John Turner said Tuesday.

Turner used his own Toronto law firm, McMillan Binch, as an example of an equal-opportunity employer.

"The firm of which I'm a partner yields to no professional enterprise in Canada in the proportion, and quality, and participation of women at the levels of our partnership," he said.

An accountant with the firm, Charles Quinlan, said later that six of the firm's 42 partners are women.

He told a group of about 200 Liberal party women in Toronto that if he becomes Liberal leader and prime minister he will ensure this policy is applied, predicting it will have a ripple effect through the entire economy.

"I do not want you as symbols," he said. "I want you as equal partners in dealing with all the problems that face our nation."

The same "contract compliance" policy would apply to firms doing business with federal Crown corporations, said Turner. But he said later it would not apply to provincial governments, several of which do not have equal pay for equal work provisions.

Turner's remarks appeared to be in contrast to those he made in Vancouver April 1 at a Liberal party gathering, when he said he preferred that affirmative action programs for women be negotiated on the basis of good will.

Speaking afterward to reporters, Turner said his "contract compliance" policy would not apply to provincial governments, several of which do not have equal pay for equal work provisions.

Turner received the most applause when he pointed out that in the United States the survival rate for small businesses started by women is higher than that of those started by men — 47 per cent to 25 per cent.

Turner ate lunch at a table that included Diana Weatherall, president of the Toronto Women's Liberal Association and a staunch supporter of leadership contender Donald Johnston, minister for economic development.

Weatherall said she attended the luncheon "to ask John Turner if he's figured out what women's issues are."

Afterward she said, "I still think Donald Johnston has a much more instinctive feel for women's issues, but John Turner has learned a hell of a lot in the last three weeks."

OBJECTS TO BONUS

Meanwhile, Economic Development Minister Donald Johnston, another leadership candidate, has objected to the payment of bonuses to executives of the money-losing Crown corporation, de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd.

Bonuses should only be provided "on the basis of merit and there was nothing meritorious in the financial operation of that corporation in 1983," Johnston said Tuesday in a written statement issued in Ottawa.

De Havilland paid a dozen of its executives a total of $155,000 in bonuses in 1983 although the company lost $234 million and taxpayers poured $500 million into the firm to cover its debts.

The bonuses were paid in addition to the average salary of $125,000 earned by the 12 officers. Johnston has frequently complained about some money-losing Crown corporations during his campaign to replace Prime Minister Trudeau.

Some corporations or parts of them should be sold, he says.

Speaking in Montreal Tuesday, Johnston said the government should get out of the lottery business, calling it a "regressive form" of taxation that exploits the poor.

He also expressed strong opposition to a Quebec law that makes French the official language of the province.

AGREES WITH LAW

Turner has said he agrees in principle with the law.

In Halifax, Employment Minister John Roberts said Turner and Energy Minister Jean Chretien, the two perceived frontrunners in the leadership race, are beginning to falter.

Roberts, also a candidate, told reporters that Turner is not living up to people's high expectations. He also said there is a growing feeling across the country that the next leader should not be from Quebec — a factor which would hurt Chretien.

Roberts said most delegates favor him as their second choice at the June convention and that delegates who are still uncommitted will probably not support Turner or Chretien.

In Victoria, Justice Minister Mark MacGuigan, another leadership candidate, said the British Columbia government went too far with its restraint program last year.

Premier Bill Bennett "didn't follow any restraint in his restraint program and I think the time has now come to move in the other direction," MacGuigan said.

Farmers face disaster if dumping continues

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 50 per cent of the 183 million tons of russet potatoes British Columbians consume annually come from Washington state, a situation that could spell disaster for B.C. potato farmers if allowed to continue unchecked, an anti-dumping tribunal was told Tuesday.

Ralph Towseley, secretary-manager of the B.C. Vegetable Marketing Commission, said "thousands of tons of B.C. potatoes have been left to rot" or been sold as cattle feed at prices that just cover transportation costs. That has happened, he said, because Washington farmers are dumping potatoes into the province at prices running as little as 50 per cent of the market value in Washington.

Towseley, whose organization markets B.C. potatoes, told the federal tribunal that prices have dropped so much B.C. farmers are selling potatoes for less than what it cost them to produce in 1982 and 1983.

"If this situation is allowed to continue unchecked, the B.C. potato industry will face disastrous consequences," Towseley said.

The tribunal is holding hearings to determine if B.C.'s 300 potato farmers are being hurt by imports of U.S. potatoes and whether a duty should be levied against the imports.

Towseley said Washington farmers also have a different marketing strategy for potatoes. They market larger sized potatoes, called count-size, which U.S. consumers prefer and are willing to pay higher prices for.

After selling the count size for premium prices, the Washington farmer can afford to dump the residual crop of non-count size, even at a loss, to the B.C. market, where there is no similar differentiation of size and grade, Towseley said.

John Gilliland, a Vancouver lawyer representing Washington, Oregon, California and Arizona potato growers, said U.S. potatoes are not being dumped in British Columbia.

BEING DUMPED

Revenue Canada found after a five-month investigation that the U.S. potatoes were being dumped in British Columbia and has now fixed prices which B.C. importers must pay or face duties.

If the tribunal rules that B.C. growers are being hurt, any duties will be kept by Revenue Canada, which will also set importing prices annually.

Towseley said it costs B.C. farmers about $7.62 to produce a hundredweight of potatoes, yet during the last two years, the price they fetched dropped as low as $2.05 a hundredweight.

It cost Washington state farmers about $6.54 (U.S.) to produce the same amount, he said. Despite that figure, Washington potatoes have sold for as little as $3 to $4.25 (U.S.) a hundredweight to importers in B.C.

ARE COMPETING

"They don't have to — they're competing nicely (with B.C. farmers)," Gilliland said in an interview.

Gilliland said he will be presenting a brief on behalf of the Washington-Oregon Potato and Onion Association and the Western Growers Association of California and Arizona to the hearings Thursday.

Their brief maintains that B.C. farmers cannot meet domestic demand for potatoes and that B.C. consumers prefer the superior quality of U.S. potatoes.

If B.C. farmers are being hurt, it is because of soil, climate and B.C. Vegetable Marketing Commission policies, not because of U.S. potatoes.

Meanwhile, the Alberta Potato Commission has asked in a written brief that the federal government also consider protective measures for Alberta farmers if it grants them to B.C. producers.

Otherwise, U.S. potatoes will be dumped in Alberta and ultimately points farther east, the brief said.

The hearings continue today.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John De Lorean, ever more desperate to raise money for his failing car company, was heard on tape recordings Tuesday pledging half the company's stock to back a deal involving "monkeys" and "parts" — code words for cocaine.

Jurors listened through earphones as prosecutors played tapes of De Lorean's frantic phone calls to an undercover FBI agent from whom he hoped money would arrive to save his company in Northern Ireland.

Even De Lorean's lawyers in London made a panicky, last-minute call to the FBI agent they thought was a banker, seeking some assurance that a deal to raise $10 million was in the works.

The agent intimated there were negotiations under way and said "there's various parties involved in this."

De Lorean, 59, said in another tape the comments had helped save the company for a few more days — indicating the FBI "sting" became entwined with the future of the company.

In the tapes, recorded in the last week of September and early October 1982, De Lorean repeatedly talked of a deal involving William Morgan Hetrick, a drug dealer.

"He's out of the country," De

Lorean said Oct. 11. "I assume he's down getting the parts, so hopefully that'll all get done."

SIGNED NOTE

The automaker, who signed a promissory note and a trust agreement filing up the deal, expressed his desperation just two weeks before his arrest on cocaine charges.

"I'm getting a deluge of calls from the ah, England and now so it's really gotten to a critical stage here," De Lorean said in a phone conversation with an FBI agent he thought was a banker.

The tape, recorded Oct. 4, 1982, was played by prosecutors at De Lorean's trial on charges he conspired to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine to save his auto company.

In the tape, De Lorean indicated he had promised his creditors, including the British government, that he would deliver $10 million by a deadline which had already passed.

FBI agent Benedict Tisa, testifying for a fourth day, told how drug dealer Hetrick used the term "monkeys" for kilograms of cocaine. Tisa also said "parts" referred to cocaine.

The use of the codeword marked the first time in the tapes that De Lorean himself seemed to refer to drugs.

President Reagan island-hopping

HONOLULU (AP) — President Reagan, hopping island to island across the ocean, urged China and other Pacific countries Tuesday to join the United States in "opposing expansionist aggression" by the Soviet Union.

Embarking on a trip across the international dateline and into Wednesday on the island of Guam, Reagan declared before takeoff that "U.S.-China relations are good, and I believe they can and will get better."

"America and her Pacific neighbors are nations of the future... we must work with our friends to keep the Pacific truly peaceful — an ocean for commerce, not conflict," he said during a departure ceremony at Hickam Air Force Base in Honolulu.

Reagan said his trip to China "symbolizes the maturing of the United States' relationship with China," following Richard Nixon's trip there in 1972, the journey by Gerald Ford in 1975, and the normalization of diplomatic relations under Jimmy Carter in 1979.

The United States and its Pacific neighbors, he said, "can go forward in a mighty enterprise to build dynamic growth economies, and make the world safer, by working for peace and opposing expansionist aggression." That was a reference to the Soviet Union.

The military role of the Soviets in the Pacific has been receiving considerable attention from the United States. The White House made available to reporters travelling with Reagan data on increases in Soviet ground divisions, ships, tactical aircraft and bombers in the Far East, from 1968 until this year.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, U.S. Defence Secretary Caspar Weinberger stressed the differences between the Soviet Union and China.

"Unlike the Soviets, who remain committed to the goal of replacing the existing international order with one of their own making, the Chinese made a carefully calculated decision to pursue their goals as a responsible member of the international community," he said. "It is clearly in our interest and in the interests of the nations of the Pacific Basin that China remain on that path."

Hart's campaign gets a boost

MONTPELIER, Vt. (Reuter) — Senator Gary Hart's quest for the Democratic presidential nomination gained a needed boost Tuesday night when he captured a majority of 13 national convention delegates at stake in 194 Vermont communities.

With more than two-thirds of the 1,530 state convention delegates selected, the Colorado senator held a commanding lead over former vice-president Walter Mondale.

Jesse Jackson trailed and had not cracked the 20-per-cent threshold needed to win any delegates to the national convention in July.

Hart, who won the state's non-binding presidential preference primary March 8, ran well Tuesday night in the largest cities and in small villages. The three-way race attracted a heavy turnout.

Of the 17 delegates Vermont will send to the national convention in San Francisco, 13 were being selected today.

State party chairman Edwin Granal, vice-chairman Shirley Schoomer and U.S. Senator Patrick Leahy already were assured delegate seats, and a fourth delegate will be elected at the state convention May 26.

Arctic oil exploration disappointing

TORONTO (CP) — Disappointing results from a highly publicized well in the Beaufort Sea may force oil companies to reconsider their exploration activity in the Arctic, industry analysts say.

Extensive drilling of the Kadluk well, 120 kilometres northwest of Tuktoyaktuk, by partners Home Oil Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of Hiram Walker Resources Ltd., and Esso Resources Canada Ltd., the exploration wing of Imperial Oil Ltd., produced large volumes of gas. Although tests indicated the presence of an oil-bearing zone, analysts are calling the well a failure because offshore gas has little economic value.

"It's one more nail in the coffin to frontier programs of companies that are there," said DeWolf Shaw, oils analyst at McCarthy Securities Ltd., of Toronto.

It has generally been known for some time that the Kadluk well would be a gas discovery but the companies and their shareholders still hoped for an oil find. Of six wells completed in the 1963 and 1964 drilling years, three were dry and the other three uncommercial.

Unless oil is discovered at one of the three or four more wells to be completed this year, the industry will be under pressure to reassess whether it is worth putting even 20 cents of their exploration dollar into the Beaufort, Shaw said.

COVERS MOST COSTS

The federal government's Petroleum Incentive Payment grants cover up to 80 per cent of the cost of exploration on Crown lands by Canadian companies.

Donald McIvor, chairman of Imperial Oil, said following the company's annual meeting Tuesday he was disappointed but undaunted by the results of the Beaufort drilling. He added the company will accelerate development of its other existing reserves.

John Walker, Arctic and Atlantic explorations manager for Esso Resources, blamed publicity for negative reaction to Kadluk.

"Kadluk was hyped up in the media as being one of the better structures for mega reserves," he said.

"It doesn't look like that's what it is. But we're not turned off at all."

Esso has reduced its Beaufort exposure to about 10 per cent of its exploration budget from 40 per cent over the past five years.

Ron Watkins, vice-president of government and industry relations at Home Oil, said Kadluk was not that discouraging.

"We're not close to the deathknell for Beaufort," he said. "There are many structures yet to be drilled and all have potential for oil."

BUDGETS 13 PER CENT

Home Oil spent about 13 per cent of its $230 million world-wide capital budget this year in the Beaufort Sea. Under an agreement with Esso, it plans to drill two wells offshore and one onshore this winter. The agreement, which called for seven offshore and six onshore wells, expires Dec. 31, 1984.

Industry observers watched

Kadluk closely because of the new technology it employed. A steel drilling caisson — a 100-metre-wide ring — was towed to the site and filled with dredged material, permitting the use of land-based drilling technology at sea.

The failure of Kadluk could prompt a review of the PIP program. Critics of the program charge that it offers incentives for rank activity but does not reward success.

PIP encourages expenditure faster than it should be given the business environment, said a spokesman for one of the companies, who asked not to be named.

Summer expansion for CN

by RALPH RESCHKE
Herald Staff Writer
TERRACE—Terrace residents can expect to see expansion work begin on the CN Yard sometime in June, according to a CN spokesman.

Alex Rennie, Assistant Manager in Public Relations, says that the company plans to spend $5 million on yard work in 1984 and another $1 million spent on installing new track in 1985.

Rennie explained Tuesday that CN has concluded negotiations with three property owners and is currently in negotiation with the receivers for the McGillis and Gibb property and also with the municipality in regards to the section of Kalum Street that crosses the yard.

"We expect to begin demolition work in June," says Rennie, "following which we will begin grading work for the yard area."

He explained that all the demolition and grading work will be completed this year, with the track work completed next year.

CN also plans to do some work on the signalling system in the yard this year.

There will be no construction of service buildings. CN is completing a new diesel locomotive maintenance shop in Prince George at the end of this month.

Both the grading and the demolition work will be contracted out, so local contractors will have a chance to put bids in on the project.

As far as employment increases are concerned,

Rennie says that employment will increase in relation to the amount of railway traffic through the yard.

The expansion program is being implemented because CN forecasts that train traffic along the northern line will increase because of the Northeast Coal development and because of the new grain terminal constructed in Prince Rupert.

Scientists study the squab

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two poultry scientists at University of British Columbia are studying how they can turn pigeons into assembly-line parents to meet a growing demand for the delicacy gourmets call squab.

Squab, however, are not your ordinary run-of-the-mill pigeons; they are fattened by commercial feeds and are generally more docile than their wild counterparts. The dark meat from the bird, which generally weighs about 400 grams, is more tender and succulent than chicken, and most of the white meat is comparable to chicken breast, says Kimberly Cheng, one of the researchers trying to find a way to increase the birds' reproductive rate. The price of squab explains why it is considered a delicacy: it's between $11 and $13 a kilogram.

Cheng says Canada is forced to import squab because domestic production, such as at Vancouver Island Mountain Squab Farm near Nanaimo, is unable to keep up with Canadian demand.

Canadians, however, are not big eaters of squab compared with other countries, says Cheng. About 400,000 birds were eaten in this country in 1982, the latest year for which figures are available.

EAT MILLIONS

"The Italians and the French eat between 70 and 90 million squab a year. And in Hong Kong alone, consumption runs about 5½ million birds a year — about one per person."

The Chinese enjoy their squab deep-fried, while the French and Italians prefer to bake or broil it, says Cheng.

He says that while demand is relatively low in Canada, the multicultural nature of the country shows promise of a larger domestic market.

The research project, which is sponsored by the Science Council of British Columbia, will try to find how to change the breeding habits of pigeons.

A pair of squab successfully rear only about 15 offspring a year, says

Cheng. The mother lays only two eggs, and after an incubation period of 11 days, the parents rear the two hatched young for between three and four weeks, after which the young can be taken away and reared for market.

Cheng, who is working with fellow researcher J. S. Sim on the project, says they will be trying to persuade pigeon parents to accept four young instead of two.

FREE PARENTS

If the parents accept the adoptees, it will free the original parents to continue producing more eggs, he says.

There are other obstacles to overcome, though.

The researchers will try to strain out those pigeons, among 200 pairs being reared, that spend a great deal of time "arguing with each other" about mating. They hope to find those "that will do it with everyone," says Cheng.

Another facet of squab that could be studied is "crop milk."

For the first three days, squab chicks are fed the high-protein milk from the parent's crop that substantially increases weight gain — the chicks' double their weight in the first day.

While naturally extracting crop milk is not economically feasible, Cheng says, there is a chance it could be synthetically produced and used to supplement feed.

Dollar down

MONTREAL (CP) — U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds in opening trading today was up 1-50 at $1.2706. Pound sterling was down 27-50 at $1.6073.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 1-100 at $0.7816 and pound sterling was up 1-25 at $1.4125.

In other business news Tuesday:

— The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce said its leading economic indicator regained some upward momentum in January, suggesting the economy will experience moderate expansion throughout the second and third quarters. The indicator rose 0.08 per cent in January following increases of 0.02 per cent in December and 0.04 per cent in November and October.

— The Royal Bank of Canada announced plans to issue $100 million in floating rate, first preferred shares in Canadian funds and $100 million in floating rate, first preferred shares in U.S. funds. The issues, to be handled by Daly Gordon Securities Ltd., are subject to approval by both the board and regulatory authorities.

— Royal Trustco Ltd., long the largest trust company in Canada, has lost its No. 1 spot to Canada Trustco Ltd., according to assets at the end of the first quarter. Royal Trustco, which sold banking operations in Florida with $1 billion worth of assets, had total assets of just under $10 billion as of March 31, while Canada Trustco recorded assets of $10.5 billion.

MacGuigan visits B.C., finds support lacking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal leadership hopeful Mark MacGuigan walked into the kind of event Tuesday that gives politicians nightmares. MacGuigan, who timed a two-day visit to British Columbia to coincide with a rash of delegate selection meetings here, arrived at a gathering sponsored by the Greater Vancouver Young Liberals Association to find that reporters outnumbered the guests.

About 30 people eventually drifted into the wine and cheese social, but not until MacGuigan had delayed his entry by more than 30 minutes.

And then only one of more than 10 people interviewed said they support MacGuigan in his bid for the leadership, although several others said they favor John Turner or Jean Chretien and two admitted being at the meeting to lobby the justice minister on another matter.

But MacGuigan told reporters he has a lot of delegate support in British Columbia. His B.C. campaign director Greg Wilson claimed that MacGuigan already has 25 committed delegates in the province.

"In fact, I may be running better than third here," MacGuigan said, adding that he guesses Turner is in the lead.

NO. 1 ISSUE

MacGuigan estimates that nationally he is in third place because he is the only candidate who is addressing the unemployment issue.

Just after he announced his candidacy he promised that, if he is elected prime minister, there will be a full employment — which economists define as an unemployment rate of about five per cent — by the end of his first term.

"The most important problem that faces Canada is the problem of unemployment," he told reporters Tuesday. "No other candidate has made a commitment to a full-employment policy. That's the basic issue before Canadians. It's almost the only issue on which Canadians are asking us to take a position."

He said he would increase employment by direct government investment in the infrastructures of the fishing, forest and other natural resource industries; by creating performance-related tax incentives, in particular for export industries and by making capital available for export industries and small and medium-sized businesses.

The tax increases or government deficit increases suggested by such stimulative policies do not concern MacGuigan.

"I don't think a Liberal begins with the problem of a deficit," he said.

"The only way to deal with a deficit is with an expanding economy, in which case the deficit declines proportionately in importance and ultimately disappears."

"I think that it's generally not understood by Canadians that the federal deficit, the federal borrowings, are borrowings for the most part from the Canadian people. They are debts that we owe to ourselves. It's not some kind of hideous monster but it's a form of dealing with our economic problems."

MacGuigan will visit the Okanagan today and return for a speech in Vancouver tonight.

Pulpworkers reject offer

VANCOUVER — British Columbia's 13,000 pulp and paper workers are believed to have rejected the industry's final contract offer in an vote count that will be released officially later today. The next move will likely be the provincial government's and cabinet is expected to discuss the issue at its special meeting this weekend at a Vancouver Island resort. All but five of the union locals have reported rejection votes of more than 80 per cent. The final vote count will be released later today.

VANCOUVER — Jim Pattison, who was publicly criticized earlier this month, for owning a company that distributed hard-core pornographic magazines, says he has asked the president of the company to review that practice. Pattison, a respected businessman and chairman of Expo 86, had been asked by Vancouver city council to appear before a council committee because women's groups complained about the material being distributed. Some of the magazines the groups objected to are: Indecent Obsessions, Best of Hooker and Family Affairs.

VANCOUVER — An official of the B.C. Vegetable Marketing Commission says that thousands of tons of B.C. potatoes have been sold as cattle feed or left to rot because Washington state farmers are dumping potatoes in the province at cheap prices. Ralph Towles says about half of the russet potatoes British Columbians eat come from Washington. A federal tribunal is studying potato imports and allegations from B.C. potato farmers that Washington is dumping the vegetable at prices below what it costs to produce them.

VANCOUVER — B.C. school districts got a break from the provincial government yesterday when it announced that the districts would be allowed to carry forward any surpluses they don't use this year. In the past they have been forced to give the province any surpluses they didn't use in a year. Education Minister Jack Heinrich says that the change will allow some districts to avoid teacher layoffs next year.

VIEWS SOUGHT ON FEDERAL WATER POLICY

What are the water issues of greatest concern to Canada and Canadians — regional scarcity, floods, acid rain — safe drinking water — adequate supplies for agriculture, industry, navigation — megaproject effects — export schemes — conserving the fishery, recreation, wildlife ...?

How should the Government of Canada act, in co-operation with the Provinces and Territories, to assure adequate supplies of clean water?

The Inquiry on Federal Water Policy seeks the participation of all interested parties and the general public in finding answers to these and other vital questions on the future of Canada's water resources. Inquiry members are: Dr. Peter Pearce, chairman; James MacLaren, and Françoise Bertrand.

Anyone wishing to make a submission should signify their intention in writing by June 30, 1984. The terms of reference and further information about public hearings to be held throughout the country in the fall of 1984 are available. Please address correspondence to:

Will the real New York Islanders please show up

MONTREAL (CP) — Steve Penney and the Canadiens played about as well as they could Tuesday night, but Montreal coach Jacques Lemaire is still waiting for the real New York Islanders to show up for the National Hockey League Prince of Wales Conference final.

So, for that matter, is Islanders coach Al Arbour, who said his players looked "fat and lazy" while being blanked 3-0 in the best-of-seven series opener.

Lemaire wasn't as caustic in his assessment of the four-time defending Stanley Cup champions.

"I don't think we saw the real Islanders tonight," said Lemaire. "As for our team, I don't think we can play any better."

"I don't think we were perfect, though, there are still some little things we're not doing right."

Penney didn't do anything wrong as he blocked 24 shots to earn his third playoff shutout and lower his goals-against average to 1.50.

Meanwhile, Jari Kurri scored twice and Wayne Gretzky added one goal and three assists as Edmonton Oilers trounced Minnesota North Stars 7-1 in the opening game of the Campbell Conference final in Edmonton.

"He had a little help from Wayne tonight but I think (goaltender) Grant (Fuhr) really held the team together," said Edmonton coach Glen Sather. Fuhr robbed Minnesota of several great chances, stopping 33 shots in the game.

Steve Payne was the lone North Star to beat Fuhr. Other Edmonton goals came from Dave Semenko, Kevin McClelland, Dave Hunter and Pat Hughes.

His best among the two dozen shots was a stick save on a bang-bang shot by Greg Gilbert, who one-timed a pass from behind the Canadiens net in the 13th minute of the first period. The Islanders outshot Montreal 8-1 through the first 14 minutes of the game.

CHANT HIS NAME

"Oh, yeah, that one in the first period," said Penney, who had the Forum fans chanting his name by the end of the game. "(Bryan) Trottier was behind the net and made a pass. I just got in the way of the puck and I got lucky."

Penney has been getting in the way of a lot of shots and then watching his defencemen clear away the rebounds throughout the playoffs, and that trend continued against the Islanders.

Mike Bossy, held to one shot on goal against the checking line of Guy Carbonneau, Bob Gainey and Mario Tremblay, said the Islanders' shooters made it easy for Penney.

"Penney made some good saves, but he didn't beat us, we just didn't have any quality shots," said Bossy.

The Canadiens had a number of high-quality shots at Islanders goaltender Billy Smith, particularly in the second period when he kept New York in the game with a handful of splendid saves.

Carbonneau had given Montreal a 1-0 lead at 17:41 of the first period when he tapped in a goalmouth pass from Tremblay.

Rookie defenceman Chris Chelios started the play, by drifting a slap shot at Smith from the blueline.

ELUDES SMITH

Mats Naslund made it 2-0 when he scooted away on a two-on-one break with Pierre Mondou, took a pass and drilled a slap shot from the rim of the left circle that Smith couldn't get his trapper on at 1:46 of the third.

Steve Shutt scored his fifth goal of the playoffs at 7:45 during a Montreal power play when he got his stick in front of a Chelios slap shot.

Shutt, who has rebounded from a miserable season and early-playoff bending to score some important goals for Montreal, was relieved that Montreal hadn't let down emotionally after a draining Adams Division final series victory over Quebec Nordiques.

"Everybody was saying, 'Well, we beat Boston and we beat the Nordiques, everything after this will be bonus,'" said Shutt. "I was afraid everybody would say, 'Well, we've done really well,' and just let up a little bit."

"That wasn't the case. We played a little bit scared tonight because they are such a good team we might have got blown out."

Game 2 of the semifinal series goes here Thursday night.

Goaltender Grant Fuhr balled out Edmonton Oilers when they needed it and Wayne Gretzky directed a sputtering offence to a 7-1 victory over Minnesota North Stars on Tuesday in the opening game of the National Hockey League Campbell Conference final.

"He had a little help from Wayne tonight but I think Grant really held the team together," said Edmonton coach Glen Sather. "In the second period he was awesome, he was up and down, he made a series of three or four saves, he was great."

Fuhr, who has started all but one of Edmonton's 11 playoff games this season, robbed Brent Ashton and Brian Bellows with the score 1-0, stopped Brad Maxwell twice, Ashton, Bellows and Ashton in rapid succession and Dino Ciccarelli with the Oilers up 2-0.

"I just got the breaks," said a modest Fuhr after kicking out 33 Minnesota shots. "The puck seemed to be sitting big and was easy to see."

Both teams were unusually sluggish offensively, a carryover from their respective tough seven-game divisional finals that ended Sunday night.

"That was very unlike our game," said Minnesota coach Bill Mahoney. "We did not develop the sharpness, the intensity we usually have."

SCORE EARLY

Dave Semenko put Edmonton ahead 92 seconds into the game and Gretzky, who had three assists, made it 2-0 before the first period ended. Pat Hughes and Jari Kurri added second-period goals before Steve Payne got Minnesota's only goal on a power play in the final minute of the period.

Kevin McClelland, Dave Hunter and Kurri with his second of the night and 10th of the playoffs added third-period goals for Edmonton.

"We had the good touch around the net tonight," Sather said of the scoring. "It just seemed our shots were going in and theirs weren't."

Which is about the same thing the North Stars said.

"We had the chances to get going but we didn't," said goaltender Don Beaupre, who was replaced by Gilles Meloche after the fifth Edmonton goal. "They have the good plays in our end, the quick passes, the shots on the fly."

"But I just feel we gave them the first game and we only have ourselves to blame."

GRETZKY HIT

Although the Oilers had safely secured a 7-1 lead with less than five minutes left in the game, the capacity crowd of 17,496 spectators were hushed when Gretzky, the premier offensive player in the NHL, slumped to the ice after being hit by Lars Lindgren.

The Minnesota defenceman carried Gretzky heavily into the boards behind the North Stars net. Gretzky lay on the ice for several minutes before being helped off.

Although Gretzky did not appear in the dressing room afterwards, the Oilers denied he was injured. Sather said Gretzky was merely winded. Dr. Gordon Cameron, the team physician, agreed, saying Gretzky suffered a contusion on his cheek.

The second game in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinal will be played here Thursday night.

Yomiuri Giants celebrate anniversary

Yomiuri Giants, Japan's first professional baseball team and still the most popular, celebrate their golden anniversary this year with 23 pennants and one unrealized ambition — victory over a North American major league champion in a global World Series.

Since its founding in 1934, professional baseball has become one of the most successful U.S. cultural imports to Japan.

The game is avidly followed by millions of fans and receives prime-time radio and television coverage. As many as 50,000 spectators flock to see the Giants play at Tokyo's Korakuen Stadium, and 60,000 fill Koshien Stadium near Osaka for contests between the Giants and Hanshin Tigers, their archrivals from Japan's second largest city.

"Japanese like the intricacies of the game," said Shigeo Nagashima, the Giants' former manager and star third baseman whose 17-year career included six batting, two home run and five runs-batted-in titles, 444 homers and a .305 average. "It is also a team event with sprinklings of individual talent."

Shinya Sasaki, anchorman for the Fuji Television Network's nightly, 55-minute Pro Baseball News, said baseball probably appeals to a special aspect of the Japanese national character.

"It demands a time lag prior to the climactic clash, just like sumo wrestling," said Sasaki.

All of the Giants' 130 games are televised. And, after watching "tesuboru" on TV, the Tokyo fan next morning can choose among seven daily sports newspapers that stress baseball coverage and regularly outsell the city's 10 regular papers at newsstands.

Japanese players come from high school or amateur company teams, and increasingly from colleges. Each club is allowed two foreigners. Most are Americans — over-the-hill sluggers or minor leaguers who couldn't hit big league pitching.

Earning as much as 100 million yen (about $540,000) a year — far more than any Japanese — they face harsh criticism from managers and the press when they don't deliver.

Baseball's roots in Japan go back almost as far as in the United States. In the 1880s and 1870s, visiting American college professors organized pickup games to fill leisure hours. The sport caught on with Japanese students.

Touring American pro teams visited Japan as early as 1906, but baseball remained an amateur sport here until the 1930s.

In 1931, Matsutaro Shoriki, owner of the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun, invited a group called the Major League Stars for a promotional tour. The team, featuring Lou Gehrig, Charlie Gehringer, Al Simmons and Lefty Grove, won all 17 games against Japanese competition.

In 1934, the Americans returned, this time led by an aging Babe Ruth, and again won 17 games, with one tie.

From the start, Shoriki made no secret of his dream of a championship series in which Japan's best — the Giants, he hoped — would defeat the winner of the U.S. World Series in a trans-Pacific best-of-seven series.

Olympic tensions ease

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The Soviet Union appeared closer to competing in the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles after a meeting with Olympic organizers and U.S. representatives Tuesday.

"I'm very happy with the results of the meetings," said Juan

Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee. "We may say that the black clouds in the Olympic sky have vanished or will very soon disappear."

Samaranch had scaled the session at the request of the Soviets, who had cast doubt about their participation and charged the United States with violating the Olympic Charter.

But after the meeting Tuesday, the Soviets promised they would attend the Games if the Los Angeles organizers

"uphold the Olympic Charter."

Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee and the chief U.S. representative at the talks, refused to characterize the meeting as a breakthrough guaranteeing Soviet attendance. But he said he would guarantee that the organizing committee would comply with the charter.

"There has been some progress, but this is not a breakthrough," Ueberroth said after a meeting with Marat Gramov, chief of the Soviet Olympic Committee.

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos have traded second-string quarterback Steve DeBerg to Tampa Bay Buccaneers, the National Football League team said Tuesday.

The Broncos will get a fourth-round draft choice and a conditional future draft choice for DeBerg, said Broncos spokesman Charles Lee.

After veteran quarterback Craig Morton retired at the end of the 1982 season, DeBerg seemed a cinch to start for Denver. Before the season began, however, Denver signed a $5-million contract with Stanford standout John Elway.

Elway proved green in the pros and DeBerg led the Broncos to four victories in five starts before injuring his shoulder at mid-season. But Elway came back and did a credible job to finish the season.

TORONTO (CP) — Catcher Buck Martinez of Toronto Blue Jays has signed a two-year extension of his contract through the 1986 season, the American League baseball team said Tuesday.

Last season Martinez, 35, who bats right-handed and platoons with left-hander Ernie Whit, hit for a .253 average, with 10 home runs and 33 runs-batted-in for 221 at bats.

After 22 at-bats this season, Martinez is hitting .182 with no homers and three RBIs. Terms of the extension weren't announced.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Atlanta Braves have acquired catcher Alex Trevino from Cincinnati Reds for a player to be named later, the National League baseball teams said Tuesday.

To make room for Trevino, 26, the Braves placed veteran catcher Biff Pocoroba on waivers for the purpose of releasing him.

Trevino joined the Braves immediately because the Reds were in Atlanta to begin a three-game series. There was no indication when the other player in the trade would be named.

Trevino played in just six games for the Reds this season and hit .100 with one hit in six at-bats.

NEW YORK (AP) — All-star third baseman George Brett of Kansas City Royals has begun rehabilitation on his left knee, a spokesman for the American League baseball team said Tuesday.

Brett, who hasn't played a game this season, suffered ligament damage to his left knee in Kansas City's final spring training game March 30 in Tampa, Fla.

SEATTLE (AP) — Joan Benoit, world record holder in the women's marathon, will have minor knee surgery and probably won't be able to enter the U.S. Olympic women's marathon trials May 12, a Seattle newspaper reports.

"She can't run, that's all I can say," Benoit's coach, Bob Sevens, was quoted as saying in the Seattle Times. "It's so hard for all of us to swallow."

"Maybe we'll try to qualify her for the team in the 3,000 metres, but that would be a disgrace. She's the world's best in the marathon."

Transactions

BASEBALL

American League Cleveland Indians receive notice from league office that second baseman Tony Bernstein has been suspended two games and fined him $300, pending appeal.

Seattle Mariners recall third baseman Darnell Coles from a 20-day rehabilitation option with Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League; option outfielder Ricky Nelson to Salt Lake City.

Toronto Blue Jays sign catcher Buck Martinez to two-year contract extension.

National League Atlanta Braves activate outfielder Terry Harper and send catcher Matt Sime to Greenville of the Southern League.

Cincinnati Reds trade catcher Alex Trevino to Atlanta Braves for player to be named later; place catcher Biff Pocoroba on waivers for purpose of releasing him.

FOOTBALL

Hamilton Tiger-Cats sign defensive back Tim Wilens and defensive back Larry Brown.

Ottawa Rough Riders sign wide receiver Bruce Walker to three-year contract; sign defensive tackle Winfred Carraway and Gerald Rogers to one-year contracts.

Toronto Argonauts sign quarterback Romie Mayfield and running back Darrell Smith.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers sign linebacker Andrew Kozar, quarterback Steve Krainovich and defensive back Barry Quattrone.

NFL Atlanta Falcons announce retirement of defensive end Jeff Morrow.

Denver Broncos trade quarterback Steve DeBerg to Tampa Bay Buccaneers for a fourth-round draft choice and a conditional future draft choice.

Miami Dolphins sign defensive backs Marvin Chatman and Andre Jones.

Defensive tackle Todd Campbell and nose tackle Don Peepack.

Pittsburgh Steelers sign defensive tackle Archie Reese; waive centre Jeff Harper.

Michigan Panthers sign kicker Novo Bogivich.

Philadelphia 76's are going home breathing fire

Philadelphia 76ers, refusing to believe their premature obituary, are going home breathing fire.

Julius Erving said after the 76ers beat New Jersey Nets 110-102 Tuesday night to tie their National Basketball Association playoff series 2-2: "We've got to go for it — nothing is going to stop us."

At one time down 0-2 in the best-of-five series and all but counted out, the 76ers have come roaring back with two solid efforts to force a fifth game.

The 76ers can bounce the Nets out of the playoffs in the fifth game

Thursday night in Philadelphia and keep alive hopes of becoming the first team in 15 years to repeat as NBA champions.

Erving and Moses Malone scored 22 points each, and Malone dominated the backboards with 15 rebounds to lead the 76ers.

Albert King led New Jersey with 20 points, while Buck Williams had 16 points and 18 rebounds. In other first-round action, it was Boston Celtics 99, Washington Bullets 96, Atlanta Hawks 100 Milwaukee Bucks 97, Utah Jazz 129 Denver Nuggets 124, Portland Trail Blazers 113 Phoenix Suns 110, and Dallas Mavericks 107 Seattle SuperSonics 96.

In the only playoff game tonight, Detroit Pistons play at New York Knicks. Celtics 99 Washington 96 Larry Bird and Dennis Johnson combined for 19 points in the fourth quarter as Boston defeated Washington to win their series 3-1. Jeff Ruland scored 30 points for Washington.

Hawks 100 Bucks 97 Dominique Wilkins gave Atlanta the lead on an 18-footer with 47 seconds remaining and Doc Rivers sank two free throws with two seconds left as the Hawks beat Milwaukee to tie their series 2-2. Wilkins and Rivers each scored 19 points for Atlanta and Johnny Davis had 17. Junior Bridgeman scored 20 for the Bucks.

Jazz 129 Nuggets 124 Darrell Griffith scored 10 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter to lead a Utah rally that carried the Jazz over Denver, tying their series 2-2. Utah's Adrian Dantley, the NBA's scoring champion, had a game-high 39 points.

Blazers 113 Suns 110 Calvin Natt scored 11 of his game-high 30 points in the fourth period as Portland beat Phoenix to even their series 2-2. Walter Davis finished with 29 points for Phoenix while Maurice Lucas had 23.

Mavericks 107 SuperSonics 96 Mark Aguirre scored 29 points and Jay Vincent added 21 to lead Dallas over the Seattle and even their series 2-2. Dallas, breaking a string of 10 consecutive road losses to the Sonics, got 20 points from Rolando Blackman. Jack Sikma led Seattle with 27 points.

Hebner a big plus for Cubs

When Chicago Cubs signed free-agent Richie Hebner last January, they were looking for someone who could fill in at third base, first base and the outfield, and also help bring a winning attitude to the clubhouse.

They got all of that, plus someone who could hit game-winning home runs off star relievers.

Hebner, 36, now with his sixth major league baseball team, hit a solo homer in the top of the ninth inning Tuesday night off Bruce Sutter to propel the Cubs past the sliding St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

The blast, Hebner's first of the season, put Chicago in first place in the National League East, one-half game ahead of Philadelphia and Montreal, and sent the Cardinals to their seventh straight loss and into last place.

In other NL games, it was Pittsburgh Pirates 3 Philadelphia Phillies 2, Atlanta Braves 4 Cincinnati Reds 2, San Diego Padres 6 San Francisco Giants 1, and Los Angeles Dodgers 5 Houston Astros 3. New York at Montreal was rained out.

Pirates 3 Phillies 2

Pittsburgh took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on doubles by Jason Thompson and Johnny Ray, sandwiched around a balk by Jerry Kocoman, 1-3.

Braves 4 Reds 2

Bob Horner stroked a deep sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the seventh inning to give host Atlanta a 3-2 lead, and Braves added an insurance run in the eighth on Cleve Washington's RBI single.

Padres 6 Giants 1

Garry Templeton, playing in his 1,000th major league game, capped a six-run first inning with a long drive that bounced off the outstretched glove of San Francisco right fielder Jack Clark for a three-run homer. It was the first home run of the season for Templeton, who added two singles to raise his average to .381. Tony Gwynn added two singles to increase his major league-leading average to .462.

Dodgers 5 Astros 3 Pedro Guerrero, who came into the game hitting .164, walked and scored in the first inning, smacked a two-run triple in the fourth and later doubled. Steve Sax, Bill Russell and Steve Yeager also had two hits each for Los Angeles, which had 12 hits off four Houston pitchers.

Ancient Phil Niekro may be knuckling a little less these days, but rival batters are knuckling under more than ever. The oldest player in major league baseball — he was 45 on April 1 — and the oldest to perform for New York Yankees, Niekro did something Tuesday which he failed to accomplish in 19 National League seasons. He is 40 for the first time in his career following an eight-hit, eight-strikeout 4-0 American League victory over Kansas City Royals.

"At my age, I've forgotten what young is," said Niekro, whose 44th career shutout also was his 272nd triumph.

He now mixes a fast ball, sinker and slider with his famed knuckleball and owns a 0.98 earned run average and a string of 211-3 scoreless innings. Niekro said he relied on the knuckleball too much with Atlanta last season.

The Yankees mapped a 25-inning scoreless drought with two unearned runs in the second off Bud Black on Butch Wynegar's bases-loaded single. Don Baylor added an RBI single in the fifth and Don Mattingly homered in the sixth.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was Seattle Mariners 4 Toronto Blue Jays 2, California Angels 8 Boston Red Sox 7.

Baltimore Orioles 3

Chicago White Sox 3, Milwaukee Brewers 3, Oakland A's 2, and Detroit Tigers 6-5 and 4-3 over Minnesota Twins in a doubleheader sweep.

The Texas-Cleveland game was rained out. Mariners 4 Jays 2

Al Cowens, who singled home Seattle's first run in a two-run sixth inning, broke a 2-2 tie with an RBI single in the eighth and eventually scored on Darnell Coles's grounder.

Toronto had tied the game in the bottom of the sixth on Lloyd Moseby's two-run homer. Moseby has 12 RBIs in his last five games.

Angels 8 Red Sox 7

California got solo homers from four veterans — Reggie Jackson, Brian Downing, Bobby Grich and Doug DeCinces — and Jackson doubled in the ninth and scored the winning run on a single by Bob Boone, another old-timer. Jackson, Downing and Grich hit consecutive homers off Dennis Boyd in the fourth, while Boone collected four hits and Rod Carew three in the Angels' 16-hit assault. That offset Boston slugger Jim Rice's first hitting spree of the season — a single, double and triple and four RBIs.

Orioles 8 White Sox 3

Eddie Murray's two-run homer, a solo shot by Cal Ripken Jr. and Scott McGregor's nine-hit pitching helped Baltimore win for only the fifth time in 17 games. Vance Law and Ron Kittle homered for the White Sox.

Tigers 6-4 Twins 5-3

Lou Whitaker's two-out single capped a three-run ninth inning in the opener as the Tigers rallied to make a winner of Jack Morris, 4-0, who scattered seven hits. In the nightcap, Lance Parrish hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning to erase a 3-1 deficit and give the Tigers a five-game winning streak and a 14-1 record.

Brewers 3 Athletics 2

Oakland's Larry Sorensen came close to working out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh when Charlie Moore lined back to the mound and Ben Oglivie, who homered in the second inning for Milwaukee's first run, was doubled off third.

CFL coach worried about NFL decisions

TORONTO (CP) —

Head coach Al Bruno of Hamilton Tiger-Cats says he's worried about the Canadian Football League's relationship with the National Football League.

"We've had a good working rapport with the NFL over the years but I think it's getting bad," says Bruno.

"I'm worried about what's happening."

Bruno bases his concern on what he says is tampering by NFL clubs with CFL players. He was particularly miffed that Keith Baker, a first-string wide receiver with the T-cats, attended a tryout camp with the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles recently.

McCammon quits Flyers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

Bob McCammon, general manager and coach of Philadelphia Flyers, resigned Tuesday night rather than give up his coaching duties at the club president's insistence, the National Hockey League team announced.

The Flyers ended the season 46-24-10 and lost in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs to Washington Capitals in three straight games.

President Jay Snider, in announcing the resignation, said he and McCammon agreed on the decision after a series of meetings ended Tuesday night in a deadlock.

During the meetings, Snider said, an impasse developed when he insisted McCammon resign as coach but retain his position as general manager for the 1984-85 season.

"Bob wanted to retain the coaching duties," Snider said. "He felt he had moulded a young team and that with additional development next year, he could coach the Flyers to another winning season."

McCammon succeeded Keith Allen as general manager before last season began.

"I felt it was ineffective for one man to do both jobs," Snider said. "The inability for both of us to agree on the status of the coaching situation made it impossible for us to continue our working relationship."

"We then agreed to part company."

Snider has appointed executive vice-president Keith Allen to head a committee to search for a new general manager. Snider also announced that agreement had been reached on the remaining three years of McCammon's contract.

Bruno also has voiced displeasure about the NFL's recent decision to end an old policy of waiting a year before picking up a released CFL player. On Tuesday, he was fuming about the NFL's decision this week to conduct a supplementary, three-round draft of players under contract to the CFL and U.S. Football League in early June.

"This (supplemental draft) will be like tampering," Bruno said. "It'll be like invisible negotiating."

"If we're able to sign a good player who chose us instead of the NFL (such as new Montreal quarterback Turner Gill), they'll begin to start expressing interest in him by dardering him as their draft choice."

TAMPERING NONSENSE

"There's so much of this tampering nonsense being done under the table right now that it's bad enough. But this kind of draft will be a serious blow to us. It upsets me and I'm sure a lot of people in Canada."

"I realize the USFL has pretty well forced the NFL to do this, but why do they want to come into our backyard? We've been very fair with the NFL over the years, but this will threaten our relationship. They're starting a conflict now. Eventually, one by one, we're going to lose all of our good players. Something has to be done."

Bruno suggested CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur or Calgary lawyer Doug Mitchell, who takes over the job in June, get in touch with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle "as soon as possible and find out what the heck is going on."

Gaudaur said the NFL did not consult him before announcing the supplemental draft, but added he felt Bruno is overreacting.

"It seems to me that what the NFL might be doing is using this as an alternative to moving their draft date ahead," Gaudaur said.

"They're trying to establish an orderly way of determining who would have rights to players from whichever league. It's really just the reverse of the negotiation lists that we've had for years. Our clubs have the right to put the names of NFL players on their lists, should they become available. This is the same principle."

Gaudaur speculated the supplemental draft might have a beneficial effect for the CFL because CFL players chosen would not be as free to negotiate with NFL clubs and create bidding wars. They would be free only to negotiate with the NFL club that chose them in the supplemental draft.

PCL roundup

Righthander

Bob Gibson struck out 11 Phoenix batters to lead Vancouver to a 9-6 Pacific Coast League baseball victory Tuesday night.

In other PCL games Tuesday, Tucson defeated South Division leader Hawaii, 5-4, Portland downed Salt Lake, 12-10, and Las Vegas beat Tacoma, 4-3.

Vancouver's hitting was paced by Jaime Nelson, who batted in three runs, while Doug Loman had two hits and one RBI for the visiting Canadians.

Alejandro Sanchez led the Giants with a two-run homer in the fourth inning and a solo homer in the sixth.

The Canadians opened the game with four runs in the first inning off Giants pitcher Scott Garrelts, including a home run by Ron Koenigsfeld.

Gibson, needed relief help from Jack Lazorko in the ninth to get the final out.

In Tucson, Chris Jones had two hits in three tries and scored twice for the Toros in their victory over Hawaii. Luis Pujols singled in what proved to be the winning run for Tucson in the last of the seventh inning.

Dwight Bernard picked up the win in relief, his third against no defeats.

Tim Wheeler took the loss.

Nelson Norman led Hawaii's hitting with four runs batted in — on a double, sacrifice fly and infield out.

Las Vegas broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning when Joe Lansford's sacrifice fly brought home Ron Roenicke and the winning run for the home team.

Roenicke also scored a run in the first inning, while teammate Ozzie Guillen slugged a two-run homer in the fifth.

Tacoma captured the lead in the fourth inning when RBI singles by Bruce Robinson and John Hotchkiss made it 2-1, and tied it 3-3 in the sixth when a throwing error by Stars' third baseman Fritz Connally brought home Robinson.

Ed Wojna gave up 10 hits while walking five and striking out five to pick up his fourth victory of the year. Jeff Jones was the loser.

In Salt Lake City, Francisco Melendez and Willie Darkis each hit two-run singles in the fourth inning to power Portland past Salt Lake.

The Gulls took a 4-1 lead after two innings on the hitting of Ivan Calderon and Jamie Allen.

YOUR INDIVIDUAL HOROSCOPE

FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1984

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning hours are your most productive. Later, you meet with distractions. Continue work on yesterday's projects. Keep plugging.

TAURUS

(Apr. 20 to May 20) A meeting may be postponed. Luck comes from a friend at a distance. A partner requires your assistance. Put first things first.

GEMINI

(May 21 to June 20) You may have too many irons in the fire. Devote your attention to one thing and you will accomplish something today.

CANCER

(June 21 to July 22) A favorite haunt is just the place for loved ones to make plans for the future! Friends, though, offer poor advice.

LEO

(July 23 to Aug. 22) A romantic interest is indecisive. Home activities are best now. You'll have luck in establishing credit, but don't abuse it.

VIRGO

(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) You'll make some progress on a collaborative effort, but you could also get bogged down on details. Accomplish what you can.

LIBRA

(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Once you finish your assignments, there's a tendency to fritter away your time. A new opportunity is just around the corner.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You'll enjoy rapport with a child, but may have some differences with a spouse about this person's future. Watch unnecessary expenditure.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Early morning restlessness could be a problem. Once you dig in and tackle duties, things go quicker than you anticipate.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) A visit with an old friend is in order. Yesterday's optimism continues. Exploring the depths of your potential brings happiness.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) A new opportunity beckons, but first you'll have to complete a current project. Finances improve, but don't give in to extravagance.

PISCES

(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) A higher-up is unpredictable. Benefits come through friends. You'll gain practical advice from a lawyer or consultant.

YOU BORN TODAY

are clever and versatile. Though practical, you're quite introspective. You'll have success in banking, but probably will make more money in some artistic field. Teaching, writing and law are also likely to appeal to you. Though conscientious, at times you can be domineering. You're a good manager, but not that fond of rolling up your sleeves and doing the hard work yourself. Offset daydreaming by finding an outlet for your imagination in a creative area.

Yesterday's Cryptogram — DID CHIEF MEDIEVAL LETTER CARRIERS HAVE COATS OF MAIL?

Today's Cryptogram clue: I equals F.

The Cryptogram is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

HEATHCLIFF

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A recent letter in your column from a nurse who has experienced "some gruesome sights in hospital emergency rooms pleaded for motorcycle helmet laws.

Oregon had such a law until our bleeding-heart, liberal legislature repealed it a few years ago. The state legislators caved in to pressure exerted by the Gypsy Jokers and other "enlightened" types who claimed the law violated their civil rights.

As a 16-year ambulance driver, I have come to the conclusion that the law is unnecessary because anyone who would ride a motorcycle without wearing a helmet doesn't have anything in there to protect anyway. — Monmouth, Ore.

Dear Month: You make a good point, but I happen to believe that the nitwits of the world need protection by those of us who have all our marbles.

Canadian adventurers leave Baghdad

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadians Ken Langley and Garry Sowerby face a lot of hard driving if they hope to reach a tip of land 800 kilometres above the Arctic Circle by Sunday in their bid to earn a second mention on the Guinness Book of World Records.

The two Halifax adventurers left Baghdad this morning for Istanbul, the next stop in their Africa-to-Arctic overland odyssey. They hope to motor about 2,700 kilometres north through Iraq and across Turkey by Thursday night.

"We are starting to smell Europe," Sowerby said in a telephone interview before leaving the capital of Iraq. "When we look at what is behind us and what is ahead of us, we get excited."

They are three days behind schedule in their race from the southernmost tip of Africa to Nordcapp, Norway. They have no record to break but are trying to cover the 21,000 kilometres in 25 days.

They left Cape Agulhas, South Africa, on April 4 but lost time after being shot at in northern Kenya by Ethiopian rebels and dropped another day last Friday when they couldn't get their truck off a ship in Saudi Arabia.

"What we are going to do is see how fast we can get to Istanbul," Sowerby said. "If we were in Istanbul by Thursday night, that would put us another day ahead."

After picking up their elaborately equipped GMC Suburban truck Saturday, they drove to Jidda, Saudi Arabia, where their truck was repaired at a General Motors depot.

From there, Langley and Sowerby crossed the desert to Kuwait, where they arrived on Monday, before stopping in Baghdad on Tuesday.

NICE GUYS

Sowerby said he was pleasantly surprised by the Iraqis, who he called the friendliest people he has met so far on the trip. "They're the slap-you-on-the-back, good-time type of guys,"

At one point Tuesday, Sowerby and Langley were about 30 kilometres from the Iran-Iraq war zone, which Sowerby said brought back memories of earlier encounters in Kenya where rebels shot out a windshield and tire on their truck. "You are dealing with a war zone," he said.

"There are enemy lines and it's not like that guerrilla sniper activity we went through in Africa."

"As we approached the border, we saw out on the horizon black smoke rising out of three different areas. We were told to watch for low-flying aircraft. Usually you are looking for potholes or to see what our route is."

Driving nonstop for 12 hours hasn't taken its toll on them — they take turns resting and sleeping in the back of their truck.

And they are not far from familiar roads. In 1980, they drove around the world in just over 74 days, which included jaunts across Yugoslavia, Austria, Germany and Scandinavia, all part of their current route.

For that escapade they were put on the cover of the current edition of the Guinness Book of World Records.

Huey Lewis raised on rock 'n' roll

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Mama was a beatnik, so she weaned baby Huey on Otis Redding, Big Brother and Bobby Womack and let him cut his teeth on early Bob Dylan.

She fed him rhythm 'n' blues with his cereal when he was just a tiny, tow-headed tad in Marin County. So you might say that Huey Lewis was raised to rock 'n' roll, even though he's a pretty unlikely looking superstar.

Lewis, whose hot album Sports, with his group The News is in the Top 10, is just a touch too normal: The eyes are a little too blue, the jaw a little too square, the hair a little too neat and brown. You've seen this guy before; you just can't remember where.

But what Huey Lewis and The News lack in outrageous trappings, they more than make up for with humor, chutzpah and heart — qualities that put them a cut above the norm in a world full of calculated, computerized musical monotony.

"So much of what we see today is visually outrageous," said the 33-year-old Lewis. "I have nothing against that. But it occurs to me that creatively and artistically, some of these visually outrageous groups play it very safe."

"Someone like Bob Dylan was much more outrageous in 1964. Randy Newman is more outrageous — creatively, artistically — even though he doesn't look outrageous. I prefer that sort of stuff."

HIGH ON CHARTS

Sports has spent 21 weeks on the charts and was No. 5 as Lewis and The News left for a worldwide concert tour through September. Their videos of Heart and Soul and I Want a New Drug are among the most popular.

"I get autographed everywhere," Lewis said. "I can't go into a 7-Eleven without signing autographs... It used to be, you could have 20 hits and people didn't know who you were. But now, with MTV, it's really immediate."

Lewis and keyboardist Sean Hopper played with a popular local band called Clover. The News — Lewis, Hopper, lead guitarist Chris Hays, bassist Mario Cipollina, saxophone player and guitarist Johnny Colla and drummer Bill Gibson — evolved five years ago out of the Monday night jam sessions at a local club and $3,000 in seed money Lewis received from a British record company for a disco version of Exodus.

"In the same way that before, I didn't have a chip on my shoulder because we were getting no recognition when we were good, I take this success with a grain of salt," Lewis said. "I don't think for a moment that because I sell a million records and some young band starting out sells 5,000, that I'm 200 times better than they are."

Lewis and The News didn't worry about marketing themselves to land a deal in the U.S. record industry. The band's British label, Chrysalis, signed them after hearing a few gigs.

DO MARKETING

"It used to be the record company's job to market this talent," he said. "Now I think the bands are doing all the marketing. They're spending so much time trying to sound like the various formats on the factionalized radio, that they're not concerned with what they really want to say. Which is really sad."

Not that Lewis tries to convey anything earth-shattering with his songs, which tend to be jumping, ultra-danceable tunes that reflect the band's sense of humor.

"But once you've got a certain amount of power, certain people are looking at you and you've fought your way to the soapbox, you have to stop shaking your fist at them," he admitted. "They're there, you've got their attention now. I think you have to say something."

Weather

A northwest flow of cool unstable air ahead of a building upper ridge will give generally sunny conditions to coastal B.C. with the chance of a few afternoon showers. As the ridge moves eastward conditions will improve further on Thursday. Freezing levels will remain near 500 metres in the north and near 900 metres in the south.

FORECASTS

Greater Vancouver, Greater Victoria, Sunshine Coast, East Vancouver Island: Sunny with a few afternoon cloudy periods and the chance of a shower near the mountains. Highs near 11. Tonight a few clouds. Lows —1 to 2. Thursday mostly sunny. Highs near 12. Probability of precipitation 20 per cent today, 10 tonight and Thursday.

Lower Fraser Valley: Sunny with afternoon cloudy periods and isolated showers. Highs near 11. Tonight a few clouds. Lows —2 to 1. Thursday mostly sunny. Highs 12 to 14. Probability of precipitation 20 per cent today, 10 tonight and Thursday.

Howe Sound-Whistler: Sunny with a few cloudy periods. Isolated showers. Highs 8 to 10. Tonight a few clouds. Lows —3 to 0. Thursday mostly sunny. Highs near 10. Probability of precipitation 20 per cent today, 10 tonight and Thursday.

North and West Vancouver Island: Sunny with cloudy periods and isolated afternoon showers. Chance of an afternoon thundershower. Highs 8 to 10. Tonight a few clouds. Lows —1 to 2. Thursday mostly sunny. Highs near 10. Probability of precipitation 30 per cent today, 10 tonight and Thursday.

Northern Mainland, Queen Charlottes: Sunny with a few cloudy periods. Isolated afternoon showers. Chance of an afternoon thundershower. Highs near 8. Tonight a few clouds. Lows —1 to 2. Thursday mostly sunny. Highs near 8. Probability of precipitation 30 per cent today, 10 tonight, 20 Thursday.

A few convective showers should develop in the cold unstable air over Interior B.C. Shower activity should subside this evening. The cool air will give frost to most regions overnight. A ridge of high pressure building from the coast will bring drier air to the Interior on Thursday.

Even the bands that owe their professional lives to MTV — and Huey Lewis and The News isn't among them — have to face the music someday and play live, something at which The News excels. The group's charisma and undeniable chemistry — with each other and the audience — leaves no doubt in any fan's mind that these guys are hot. That's the acid test, Lewis says.

"That's what rock 'n' roll is all about. It's meant to be spontaneous, raw, improvisational to a certain degree and maybe a little threatening," he said. "So much of what we see today is so calculated, so thought-out. It comes from the mind. I think rock 'n' roll comes from the heart. It's supposed to be emotional and passionate — at least that's what it is to us."

Hussey's new series old-fashioned potboiler

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Olivia Hussey says her arrival in Italy to begin work on the mini-series The Last Days of Pompeii was like a reunion.

"I found I had worked with every member of the crew from the age of 13," says Hussey, who was 15 when she starred in the haunting Romeo and Juliet directed by Franco Zeffirelli.

"Pompeii was a very nice production to work on," she says. "It's very rare when you can say that about a four-month location. Everyone got along and it was delightful. That's not always true when you have that many egos."

During most of that time she was separated from her husband, Japanese singer-composer Akira Fuse. She had with her their son Max, now 15 months, and Alex, now 11, her son from another marriage.

A POTBOILER

In The Last Days of Pompeii, M. Valerius, a Roman nobleman, is port city like a ticking time bomb. But the series is really an old-fashioned potboiler in the tradition of The Bridge Over San Luis Rey and the genre of "who-will-live, who-will-die?" fiction. Screenwriter Carmen Culver loosely adapted it from the 1834 novel by Edward Bulwer-Lytton.

The series also stars Franco Nero, Sir Laurence Olivier, Lesley-Ann Down, Duncan Regehr, Nicholas Clay, Linda Purl, Ned Beatty, Anthony Quayle, Ernest Borgnine, Brian Blessed and Slobhan McKenna. The David Gerber production, directed by Peter Hunt, will be telecast by ABC and Global Television Network in Ontario on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The show is a countdown before the volcanic eruption that buried Pompeii and killed most of its people in 79 A.D. The city lay undiscovered under ash and lava for 1,700 years. The series tells of its decadence, tangled love affairs, religious intrigue, political ambitions and death games in the gladiator ring.

At the heart of the intrigue is Arbaces (Franco Nero), who uses his post as high priest of the Isis religion to persecute Christians and plot for power in the Roman Empire. At his side, but unaware of his plotting, is Ione (Hussey).

MUST DECIDE

"Ione comes from a wealthy and a noble family," she says. "She's next in line to be high priestess of the cult. But she meets and falls in love with Glaucus (Nicholas Clay) and has to decide whether she wants to be high priestess or be in love."

Do she and Glaucus make it to safety? Do others? The fun of these kinds of shows is guessing who's going to make it and who isn't.

Hussey spent 10 days in Pompeii, which has nearly been restored, another two months in Italy, then two months at England's Pinewood Studios.

"We were very uncomfortable during some of the shooting," she says. "All of that soot was falling on us and we had to fight our way through the crowds of extras during the eruption scene. I must say Peter Hunt kept calm. I don't know of anyone else who could work with 10,000 extras and keep calm."

Hussey and her family divide their time between Los Angeles, Hawaii, New York and Japan.

A STAR IN JAPAN

Hussey, who's been voted one of the most popular actresses in Japan for the last 17 years, met Fuse on a visit to Tokyo. "I was in Japan to do a cosmetics commercial five years ago. Akira sang the song for the promotion. We were married a year later. We had a week together, then we were separated for four months. There were a lot of tears and a lot of phone bills."

Hussey was born in Argentina, the daughter of opera singer Andreas Osuna and his British wife, Joe Hussey. She was raised in London, and at 15, with only two movies to her credit, got the biggest break in her young life. She beat out 800 other young women for the role of Juliet in Zeffirelli's production of Romeo and Juliet.

"The movie really started as a British color television special," she says. "We were to shoot it in three weeks. Then Paramount bought it and that changed everything overnight. I spent a year in Italy making the film. I spent five months looping the sound because there were so many airplane noises. Especially during the balcony scene. Every time we tried to talk a plane went over."

Soviets compete

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The Soviet Union appeared closer to competing in the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles after a meeting with Olympic organizers and U.S. representatives Tuesday.

"I'm very happy with the results of the meetings," said Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee. "We may say that the black clouds in the Olympic sky have vanished or will very soon disappear."

cast doubt about their participation and charged the United States with violating the Olympic Charter.

But after the meeting Tuesday, the Soviets promised they would attend the Games if the Los Angeles organizers "uphold the Olympic Charter."

Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee and the chief U.S. representative at the talks, refused to characterize the meeting as a breakthrough guaranteeing Soviet attendance.

Prince faces charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two photographers have filed damage claims against Prince Andrew for his impromptu spray paint job on the news media last week, although there has been no word on whether the claims will be paid, a British official said Tuesday.

"I don't know that any commitment has been made, but I am sure that the claims will be seriously considered," said Angus Mackay, public affairs officer at the British consulate in Los Angeles.

While visiting a housing project in the suburb of Willowbrook, Andrew let fly a high-pressure stream of paint from a spray nozzle at some of the reporters and photographers who trailed him throughout his five-day Southern California visit.

"We're trying to make arrangements to have the damage independently valued, and when we have done that we will forward the claims to London," Mackay said.

"They will go, in the first instance, to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, who would probably consult as appropriate with Buckingham Palace," Mackay said.

Space defence remote

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Reagan's promise of a Stars Wars-like space defence system that could some day eliminate the threat of nuclear weapons appears unattainable in the foreseeable future, a congressional body said Tuesday.

"The prospect that emerging Star Wars technologies will provide a perfect or near-perfect defence system... is so remote that it should not serve as the basis of public expectation or national policy about ballistic missile defence," said the Office of Technology Assessment.

Its report was released by two Senate critics of the program, Democrat Paul Tsongas and Republican Larry Pressler.

Reagan called in a March 1983 speech for a "long-term research and development program to achieve our ultimate goal of eliminating the threat posed by strategic nuclear missiles."

Lieut.-Gen. James Abrahamson, named this month to head the missile defence program, told a Senate armed services subcommittee earlier Tuesday that arms talks with the Soviet Union are a key element if the controversial effort is to succeed.

Pressler, of South Dakota, said the report showed "technological solutions to the world's nuclear dilemma are unlikely to be found at any price. It would be a national disaster if hundreds of billions of dollars or even a trillion dollars were spent in investigating technological dead-ends."

Tsongas, of Massachusetts, accused Reagan of offering the American people a "fantasy" and called on Congress to meet the serious test of halting the program now by refusing funds.

LONDON (Reuter) — About 1,000 pickets failed to stop rebel miners in central England from working today in defiance of their union's strike action.

Police kept the pickets under tight control, but the working miners still had to endure jeers and cat-calls.

The state-run national coal board said all 25 mines in Nottinghamshire, Britain's second largest coalfield, were open. Fourteen out of 18 mines in the board's western area were also operating, 10 normally, it said.

The six-week-old strike, to protest the planned closing of 20 uneconomic mines with the loss of 20,000 jobs over the next 12 months, remained solid in the biggest coalfield, Yorkshire, and those in Scotland, northeastern England, south Wales and Kent.

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Swedish experts monitored an underground nuclear blast in the Soviet Union today and described it as the strongest Soviet test so far this year.

A spokesman for the Uppsala Seismological Institute said an explosion in hard rock, registering seven on the Richter Scale, was detonated at Semipalatinsk in Kazakhstan, the site usually used for Soviet weapons tests.

The Soviet Union, where 27 nuclear explosions were recorded last year, has carried out four nuclear tests this year.

LONDON (Reuter) — God is not a male deity and can be addressed as Our Mother, says a report by the Church of Scotland.

The report followed criticism that the Christian church is not taking a sufficiently serious attitude toward women, who feel alienated and distanced by an exclusively male description of God.

There are biblical grounds for regarding God as having feminine aspects, said the study published Tuesday.

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union announced today that First Deputy Prime Minister Ivan Arkhipov will visit China in mid-May.

The Communist party daily Pravda said Arkhipov, 77, will be in Peking between May 10 and 20. It gave no further details.

Arkhipov will be the most senior Soviet official to travel to the Chinese capital in more than 20 years. Asian diplomats have said his trip will mark a further step toward the normalization of ties between the two Communist powers.

MSINGA, South Africa (AP) — Thirty-three Zulu tribesmen were killed in a factional fight that broke out in this hilly, rural region inland from the Indian Ocean, police said today.

It was not clear what started the battles. Clan wars are common in the area, and can be caused by poaching, rustling or family grudges.

Apple co-founder has no incentive

For Steve Wozniak, a legendary figure in the world of personal computers, becoming rich and famous has had nothing to do with wanting to be a businessman.

In fact, the bearded 33-year-old Californian says, "I never had a business incentive in my life."

But the Woz, as he is often called, co-founded with Steve Jobs one of North America's most stunning business success stories: Apple Computer Inc., which last year racked up $1 billion in sales.

"Basically, my relationship with money is not normal," Wozniak said in an interview during a visit to Toronto.

"I don't have an accountant. All I own is Apple stock, and believe it or not, I don't follow the stock price."

Wozniak's 3.5 million Apple shares would be worth about $100 million at recent share prices. Not bad for someone who nine years ago thought an apple was just something you eat.

In 1975, Wozniak was a member of a small club of computer enthusiasts. At their meetings, he would show off his latest designs. The self-taught electronics buff had been designing computers since Grade 6 and presenting them at science fairs.

Wozniak says it was the inner logic of computers that fascinated him, not what the machines could do in any useful sense. In fact, he figured he'd probably end up designing TVs or radios for a living — "things that work" — since computer technology appeared to have little practical use.

START BUSINESS

Jobs came up with the idea of starting a business to sell printed circuit boards (an integral part of a computer) to club members. Maybe they could sell 50 or so at $40 each.

Wozniak was afraid they'd lose money in the venture, but he remembers Jobs persuading him with the line: "Maybe we'll lose all our money, but at least we'll have a company for once in our lives."

Soon they were selling fully assembled computers and the demand began to sky-rocket.

"Steve had more of a vision of what the computer meant to the outside world," says Wozniak. "I had a vision of what it meant to my little technical community of hobbyists who didn't mind bare wires on their living room floor."

"The mix was excellent."

Apple quickly grew into a large structured company — "with tons of memos up and down" — and Wozniak's style of working on individual projects no longer meshed with the new approach, where teams of engineers would tackle projects.

"All of a sudden I wasn't really a needed key to Apple's future. I was just one of 50 engineers."

Feeling "a little burned out," Wozniak took two years off from the company. The computer pioneer finished his last year at college to earn a bachelor's degree in computer science.

(During an earlier college stint, "I almost got kicked out for abusing the computers, for running programs I wasn't supposed to.")

RETURNED TO APPLE
After staging a couple of money-losing rock festivals, Wozniak returned to Apple last year as a full-time engineer.

"I deliberately selected the most anonymous division where I could get involved in a couple of nice engineering projects."

That meant staying away from the high-profile Lisa and Macintosh projects and working on the aging Apple II. It also meant leaving management politics to chairman Jobs and the others running Apple.

"People don't work for me," Wozniak says. "I won't fight or argue: it's not worth the hassle. You can be friends with everyone and just have a lot more peace in your head."

Wozniak says business success has never been his main motivation. Solving the next technical puzzle — especially if the solution is clever enough to surprise his peers — is what gives him the most delight.

He denies being anything more than a "real good, but normal designer," and says he is definitely not the incredibly brilliant wizard able "to rattle off the quickest computer design in the world," as legend has it.

His biggest problem at Apple now is not a technical one. It's dealing with outside requests on his time, which are making him "not as effective as I should be."

But he's working hard to change that, and says with satisfaction that he hasn't answered his phone in three weeks.

U.S. violates international law

THE HAGUE (AP) — Nicaragua charged today that the United States carried out "savage, brutal acts" to try to overthrow its leftist Sandinista government. It asked the World Court to order the campaign to stop.

In his opening statement at preliminary hearings on Nicaragua's case against the United States, Carlos Arguello, representing the Sandinista regime, claimed the U.S. government "flagrantly violated international law" by supporting rebel Nicaraguan forces based in neighboring Central American nations.

Nicaragua has asked the International Court of Justice to declare that the United States has violated international law by aiding the rebels and by supervising the mining of Nicaraguan ports.

It also is seeking the payment of reparations for "damages to persons, property and the Nicaraguan economy" caused by the alleged actions of the United States.

But on April 9, before Nicaragua's petition to the World Court was filed, the U.S. State Department announced it would not recognize the court's jurisdiction over Central America for two years.

CIA BLAMED

The mining is believed to have ceased after the disclosure that the CIA, with President Reagan's approval, participated in the mining.

Arguello, who is Nicaragua's ambassador to the Netherlands, urged the court to rule that the United States should "immediately cease and desist from all use and threat of force" against Nicaragua "to prevent further loss of human life and further debasement of Nicaragua's sovereign rights."

He said Nicaragua is seeking "moral support" of the World Court.

Despite the State Department refusal to recognize Central American cases in the World Court, the United States is expected to argue its side on Thursday.

Jean Kirkpatrick, ambassador to the United Nations, and other Reagan administration officials have said the Sandinistas would exploit the World Court for propaganda.

The 15-member World Court is empowered to order interim measures when the sovereign rights of a nation are in jeopardy but has no powers of enforcement.

Unhealthy live shorter lives

TORONTO (CP) — The poorest Canadians live shorter lives, have more physical and mental illness and double the infant mortality rate of the richest groups in society, a panel discussion on children and poverty was told Tuesday.

Trevor Hancock, an official with the Metropolitan Toronto public health department quoted statistics that show Canadian men in the bottom fifth in terms of annual income live an average six years less than those in the highest 20 per cent. Women in the lowest group live about three years less than women in the highest.

In addition, both men and women in the poor group are far more likely to be physically or mentally disabled.

Hancock also told the panel discussion, sponsored by the Ontario NDP's social services critic, Richard Johnston, that infant mortality rates are 1.35 times higher for male infants and 1.86 times higher for female infants in the lower segment.

The thrust of the discussion was that children of the poor suffer from malnutrition and lack proper health care, which stunts their physical and mental development and influences behavior the rest of their lives.

GROUPS DESPAIR

Johnston noted that in meetings with community groups across the province, he heard teachers and public health nurses decry that more poor children miss school for health reasons than their wealthier peers, while malnourished children and many with major dental problems go unattended. In addition, he heard from parents who have stopped paying Ontario Health Insurance Plan premiums in vain attempts to meet other expenses.

Panelists urged governments to spend more money on public health programs to arrest this trend, but they resigned themselves to the fact little can be done without a greater commitment to redistribute income to the poor levels from the middle and upper classes.

"The income distribution in Canada is outrageous," said Hancock. He said the lowest fifth of society still owns only six per cent of the national wealth, compared with 40 per cent for the highest fifth.

In addition, he said, the poorest group has seen its share of the national economic pie get smaller and smaller in the last 30 years while that of the middle class has grown significantly.

All About PEOPLE

The organizers of the 98th annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association have lined up an impressive list of speakers for the occasion, to be held in Montreal from April 30 to May 2.

It is the first time the convention will be held outside the United States.

Speakers include Prime Minister Trudeau, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque, Conservative Leader Brian Mulroney, Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee Iacocca, Michael Blumenthal, former U.S. treasury secretary, and Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum and considered one of the best authorities on relations among the United States, China and the Soviet Union.

If delegates find all those high-powered speakers a little overwhelming, they will have the chance to squeeze in a trip to the Laurentians for a maple sugar party, see the RCMP musical ride and hear Quebec comedian Jean Lapointe give his first show in English.

Associate District Judge Paul Simmons says "if I found someone exactly like me, I would change."

It's not likely he's in danger of having to change — at least voluntarily.

But some lawyers think the Wagoner, Okla., judge should change and he is being investigated by a judiciary panel.

Among allegations being investigated are claims that the 69-year-old Simmons extinguishes cigarettes on his tongue and eats raw hamburger while on the bench, once pointed a gun at a lawyer and sometimes threatens children with "the hanging tree."

"I'm just an extremist as far as non-conformity goes," said Simmons.

Two Toronto fishermen hadn't planned to go ice-fishing but they caught plenty of it when they tried their luck in Georgian Bay.

Alexander Toczyski, 60, and Robert Starandonskis, 30, spent about six hours caught in an ice flow near the mouth of the Beaver River near Thornbury, Ont., after a shifting wind jammed their small craft in the ice.

They were rescued by the coast guard cutter Montmorency.

Katherine Kaszas, a former stage manager and associate director of the Blyth Festival, will succeed Janet Amos this fall as artistic director, the Blyth Centre for the Arts has announced.

The festival, in its 10th year in a well-equipped air-conditioned community hall northwest of Stratford, Ont., is devoted to new Canadian plays.

Kaszas, a graduate of York University's theatre program, directed Maritime Faces last season and conducted a number of workshops. She has also directed at theatres in Grand Bend and Thunder Bay, Ont., Winnipeg and Saskatoon.

Amos takes over as artistic director of Theatre New Brunswick based in Fredericton.

Slings and Arrows

By Nigel E. Hannaford

A typical piece of Trudeau leadership

Our Indian people should be just as dismayed with the prime minister's "magnanimous" gesture as some of the provincial premiers evidently were.

The idea of Indian self-government has merit. South Africa has already demonstrated that the existence of separate "states within the state" is workable and does not destroy the integrity of the larger political entity. Any true conservative will also agree that in order for people to behave responsibly, they have to be given some effective power over their own lives.

I've heard it suggested that the Indians don't have the capacity to govern themselves, that they would make a mess of things.

Frankly, after 16 years of PET, the white man is in no position to point a finger.

What is upsetting though is that Mr. Trudeau chose to introduce this proposal in a way that almost guaranteed failure. It was also guaranteed to make him look good and the provinces bad, making one suspicious of his actual motivations.

To put it bluntly, his proposal for a constitutional amendment guaranteeing Indian self-government took both the Indians and the provinces by surprise. It was not only unexpected, but vague.

What did he mean by self-government? Were the Indians to run their own health, welfare and education using government grants? Were they to have their own powers of taxation? What about law enforcement? How far was this to go?

In the face of these questions, it is hardly surprising that most of the provinces balked, not merely at the guarantee, but even at supporting an "accord."

Had the prime minister prepared the ground a little better, he might have had the support he needed. But no, it was a typical piece of Trudeau "leadership."

It was especially typical in that it failed to help the people it was designed to serve.
